

American Brain Tumor Association

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Being diagnosed with a brain tumor takes a toll on a patient and the family, not only physically and emotionally, but also financially. Even with the best of health insurance plans many are left with medical bills as well as the related costs of travel, housing, utilities and others. Below we outline various sources of financial assistance that may help alleviate some of the stress of this difficult time. In addition to this list, check with your hospital social worker to locate community-based resources and programs.

MEDICAL CARE

If you are uninsured and need assistance with medical bills, contact your local Social Security Office at 800-772-1213 to determine if you qualify for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI). The medical requirements and disability determination process are the same under both programs. However, while eligibility for SSDI is based on prior work under Social Security, SSI is based on financial need.

Hill-Burton Funds are federal grants that allow hospitals and nursing homes to provide low-cost or no-cost medical care to those meeting income guidelines. To receive a listing of hospitals or nursing homes participating in the program, contact Hill-Burton at 800-638-0742 or view on the web at www.hrsa.gov/hillburton/hillburtonfacilities.htm. Funding and sites are limited.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Bureau of Primary Health Care has information on public programs for the uninsured in your area. Their web address is <http://bphc.hrsa.gov> or call 888-275-4772.

PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

Most major pharmaceutical companies have patient assistance programs offering a free three-month supply of medication to those who cannot afford their prescriptions. To obtain guidelines and a listing of participating companies, call the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association at 800-762-4636 or www.phrma.org. Your physician must complete the medication request. Also, The Partnership for Prescription Assistance offers a single point of access to more than 475 public, state and private patient assistance programs, including more than 180 programs offered by pharmaceutical companies. Patients can call 888-477-2669 or visit the user-friendly website at www.pparx.org.

You can also access the Medicare Rights Center at 212-869-3850 or www.medicarerights.org to locate prescription assistance or discount programs. The Medicare Prescription Drug program gives patients a choice of prescription plans that offer various types of coverage. You may be able to get extra help to pay for the premiums, annual deductible and co-payments related to the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage program. However, you must be enrolled in the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage program to get this extra help. Visit www.medicare.gov or call 800-MEDICARE to see if you qualify.

Deeply discounted prescription drugs have begun to show up at some of the major discount stores across the country. Last year Wal-Mart announced a list of 100 generic drugs priced at only $4 for a 30-day supply at one of their Florida stores. They now offer a 90 day supply for just $10. The program has expanded since that announcement. Not only did the list of discounted drugs triple and the list of participating states includes all but North Dakota, but three other retailers announced similar programs around the country. Target, Kmart, and Wegmans Food Markets an East Coast retailer joined the movement with programs of their own. Some of the programs offer 30-day supplies, some are 90-day supplies, but each is offered at discounted rates.

What does this mean to brain tumor families? A recent check of the $4 generics offered through the Wal-Mart program included multiple strengths of dexamethasone (a steroid), prednisone (a steroid), carbamazapine (an antiepileptic drug), and several antidepressants.

The Wal-Mart pharmacy site is at www.walmart.com/pharmacy and then check the drug list. If your drugs are listed in the Wal-Mart program, call your local Kmart pharmacy to see if they offer matching prices. The Wegmans list can be accessed online at www.wegmans.com/pdf/wegmans90DayGeneric.pdf. Their program includes a 90-day supply for $11.99. The Target list can be viewed at http://sites.target.com/images/pharmacy/pharmacy_4dollar_program_list.pdf. If you do not have one of these listed retailers near you, check with the pharmacy currently filling your prescription to see if they have plans to join these programs.

If you are not using generic drugs, ask your doctor if any of the listed generic drugs is an appropriate choice for your prescription.

UTILITIES

Assistance programs are offered by many gas, electric, water, and phone companies. If you feel you may have difficulty paying your monthly bills, contact the company before your balance becomes too large. Companies are more amenable to working out a payment plan with those willing to work with them. Many states have regulations that prohibit companies from turning off utilities; your doctor or social worker may need to write letters describing why the service(s) are medically necessary. The regulations do not diminish your responsibility for paying the bills, but may allow you more time or lower monthly payments. In an emergency situation, check with local help lines and social service agencies as some provide one-time emergency help with utility bills.
